

GALLANTRY OF AMERICANS PREVENTS HUNS BREAKING THROUGH LINE AT AMIENS

Formed Part of Improvised Division Hastily Assembled, Says Correspondent of London Paper; Gives Unlimited Praise to Bravery of Men Who Fought Grimly Under Difficulties; Using Machine Guns Pershing's Men Mow Down Germans by the Thousands and Retreat Only When Weapons Become So Hot They Refuse to Work.

NUMBERS OF U. S. CASUALTIES ARE UNKNOWN

LONDON, April 10.—But for the gallant defense put up by General Carey's improvised army in which American railway engineers played a prominent part, says the correspondent on the Western front of the Daily Mail, the enemy might have pushed through Amiens in the first few days of his great attack. "There was no doubt in anybody's mind that they would hold on grimly as long as breath remained in their bodies," says the correspondent. How the men were assembled before daylight, made up into companies and battalions by noon and ready to march shortly after is told by the correspondent, who adds: "It was not until it had been in the field for some time that the force was able to get artillery, but as soon as they had it they certainly used it to good advantage. In the beginning, however, it was the men who held the enemy back with their bodies."

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN France, April 10.—The American Railway Engineers who helped stem the tide of the on-rushing Germans during the opening days of the battle now in progress fought shoulder to shoulder with Canadian Engineers in carrying out their task. They held their ground stubbornly, and only retired to previously prepared positions when forced to do so, and inflicted casualties by the thousands upon the Germans as they advanced in close formation, in one place in as many as seven waves, each wave 10 men deep and 100 yards apart. The Americans with the Canadians had all the ammunition they needed, and although they were unsupported by the artillery, and armed only with rifles and a few machine guns they poured scythe-like streams of bullets into the enemy several different times until the weapons were so hot as to be useless.

This handful of American soldiers, who were not hardened to such terrific slaughter, was sickened by the shambles it created, but fought furiously for several days, helping to hold the enemy all the way from St. Quentin to the vicinity of Noyon. When the German attack began, the Americans were working in the rear lines with the Canadians, under Canadian command. They quickly threw down their tools and seized the weapons with which they had been armed for some months and formed themselves into a fighting unit. The Germans came on and finally reached the positions where the Americans were waiting.

The exact numbers of the engineers cannot be given, but they were comparatively small. They had no intention of retreating, however, and were put upon killing all the Germans possible.

As the first gray enemy advanced, the American forces let them come until they were within certain range, then opened fire pouring a storm of bullets. Gaps appeared in the advancing lines at many places, some of them large, where the machine guns had chewed through. Still the German waves came on, without firing a single shot—just advancing.

The Americans were unable to understand these tactics, but nevertheless were certain that it was a question of slaughtering the enemy or being themselves smothered under the advance. By this time their weapons were so hot that they could not be used effectively, and the enemy was close, so that the engineers retired, fighting, took up another position, then turned and began operations again.

By the time the engineers had reached a place somewhere near Noyon they were nearly exhausted and almost without equipment. There they were given a chance to rest and re-equip. According to all reports, they were entitled to it for certainly they gave the Germans a generous sample of what the enemy is to expect from the American Army.

U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE HOW TO GROW

Spinach.

Spinach thrives in a rather cool climate and attains its best development in the middle South, where it can be grown in the open ground during the winter. Further north it is necessary to protect the plants during the winter with a mulch of straw or leaves. To produce good spinach a rich loam which will give the plants a quick growth is required. Fall planting is to be recommended wherever this is possible, as the fall-planted spinach is not so much inclined to go to seed as that planted in the spring. One ounce of seed is sufficient for a 100-foot row, and this crop may be sown in drills about 1 foot apart.

Spinach is an easily grown garden crop, and there is perhaps no other of its kind that will give as good satisfaction. In gathering spinach the entire plant is removed rather than merely cutting off the leaves. The larger plants are selected first, and the smaller ones are thus given a chance to develop.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Cauliflower.

The cauliflower requires a rich, moist soil, and thrives best under irrigation. It will not withstand as much frost as cabbage, but is very sensitive to hot weather. To make a success of the crop it is best to plant it about the time of the last killing frost in spring, using plants grown in the hot bed or window box. This gives it time to mature before hot weather comes. The rows need not be more than 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart for home cultivation, or 24 to 30 inches apart for hand work. The plants should be from 14 to 18 inches apart in rows. The culture is the same as for cabbage, until the heads begin to develop, after which the leaves may be tied together over the heads to exclude the light and keep heads white.

This crop is one of the aristocrats of the garden. If you succeed in growing high-grade cauliflower you will qualify as a good gardener.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

TO ALL STOMACH SUFFERERS

I use this means to reach all those who have been suffering with stomach trouble; I have been cured and I want to give you the benefit of my experience; I suffered with stomach troubles for seven years; during that time I doctored with some of the best stomach specialists, tried Christian Science, physical culture, a hundred odd family remedies; all the patent medicines I saw advertised to cure indigestion, and took everything anybody would suggest, but with no relief. At last I found a cure; the first dose gave me instant relief; I could hardly believe it would continue to give me relief, but it has now been two years since I have been cured of stomach trouble; all my friends who have used the medicine have been cured; if you have had any experience or know of any of your friends who are suffering, write me, inclosing stamped envelope and I will tell you how to get this medicine; this is no patent medicine advertisement, but is the only way I can reach those who want to be relieved of the terrible stomach misery. I am telling my friends about it."—Mrs. J. M. CANUS, 725 Caroline St., Key West, Florida.

Many women at some period in their lives suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex and which in most cases may be readily relieved by this famous root and herb medicine, Lydia E. QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

RUB OUT WRINKLES KEEP SKIN CLEAR

The most delicate skin will quickly respond to the soothing and tonic effects of Hokara when this pure skin cream is used.

As a massage cream or after shaving it is unequaled, removing all irritations, and making the skin soft and velvety.

Apply a little to the hands or face after washing and surprise yourself with the dead skin that comes off. Hokara is the only antiseptic massage cream and all skin blemishes soon disappear when it is used.

Although far superior to the ordinary massage creams and sold on a guarantee of "best you ever used or money back," yet the price is a trifle, only 35c for a liberal jar; larger size 60c.

THE PURPOSE PARAMOUNT.

Many of us are disposed to chafe and grow resentful under the increasing flood of annoyances precipitated by this world war. In every new regulation is something to criticize. In every curtailment an imagined privation. These needless and vexatious and needless days have tried us sorely. Altogether, the conditions have got on our nerves, says the Liberty Loan Committee.

The chief trouble about it all is that the great mass of the people does not understand why these conditions exist. We have been a peculiarly favored and indulged people ever.

We have been used to plenty and occasional luxury. Always we have been able to get whatever money would buy. To find this no longer possible is intensely exasperating.

But we must remember one thing through it all.

The paramount national purpose today is to win this war.

And these sacrifices are necessary to that end.

The responsible federal departments in Washington have tried to impress this upon the people. They have tried to explain in all instances of curtailment just why they are necessary. Maybe they haven't been explicit enough. Maybe a closer heart to heart touch with the people would help.

And maybe the people have ignored their repeated explanations.

In any event it is up to us all to keep a stiff upper lip and meet every succeeding demand with a smile.

That's our bit right now. We must stop grumbling at inconveniences that are really insignificant when the big end at stake is considered.

For this war must be won for Uncle Sam and his allies.

That is the purpose paramount.

So don't forget the coming Liberty Loan.

THE DOG LAW.

If the owners of dogs understand clearly that it is their duty to be secured at night so as to prevent them leaving the premises, and not allowed to go abroad in the day time without bearing a license tag or accompanied by the owner or a keeper, they may rest secure in the knowledge that their pets will not fall victims of the dog killer. If by any chance a licensed dog is apprehended without its owner or keeper it must be impounded by a police officer but not killed. The owner may claim the animal and pay the costs of detention within 10 days otherwise the officer may sell the dog or kill it and the owner will be without recourse under the law.

Unlicensed dogs found running at large are to be killed by police officers or constables. In fact this is a duty the law enjoins upon these officers with a penalty for failure to perform it. Under the interpretation of the law a civilian does not have the lawful right to kill a dog, either licensed or unlicensed, except when caught doing injury to livestock or attacking persons. Hence if the man or woman unlicensed dog in your neighborhood tears up your carefully prepared lettuce or onion bed you cannot kill it unless you happen to be a policeman or a high constable. If the brute which commits a degradation of this sort bears a license tag and is accompanied by its owner or keeper you cannot do anything to it even if you are an officer much as you may be tempted to do something to both the dog and its owner. In such cases you let him only in action for damages against the owner of the dog.

The intent of the law is to prevent the promiscuous running at large of dogs that are licensed and authorized and require the killing of all others. It is therefore becomes the duty of owners to keep their dogs within the limits of their premises or otherwise under restraint. For unlicensed dogs no provision is made other than that it is the duty of police officers and constables to kill them when found. Dog owners complying with the law just as those who comply with other laws will not be molested but their regard for the rights of their neighbors ought to compel them to see that their dogs molest no one.

Loafers in War Time

By Edward Mott Woolley

Copyright 1918 American Defense Society

One reads a good deal in the newspapers about the scarcity of labor and we hear serious predictions concerning the difficulty farmers will have in planting and harvesting their crops yet in traveling about the country—and in recent months I have covered the United States from coast to coast—I have observed large numbers of men who seemed to have no occupation at all. I believe that many thousands of men are practically loafing. I am informed in certain factory towns that a considerable percentage of young and able-bodied men are living on the earnings of their wives and mothers. Work has been so plentiful for women in these industries that this class of men consider it unnecessary to do any labor themselves, or at least they prefer to do as little as possible.

I have often stood in front of the motion picture theaters along about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, watching the incoming throngs of people and have been amazed at the large proportion of young men who apparently are in sound physical condition. The other day I asked a municipal official in a large industrial community how it happened that these young men were able to spend the whole afternoon in a picture show when we were reading continually about a labor shortage.

The shortage would be less acute, he answered, if something could be done to make these men work. This community is full of men who are idle by preference and the money they spend at the picture theaters and elsewhere is earned by the toil of women who work long hours in the factories. It is a burning disgrace that this sort of thing should exist and it will be more than a disgrace if these men are not made to work during the summer on the farm where labor will be so much in demand.

Now I do not cite this situation with an intention of advocating the conscription of labor at the present time. I don't pretend to say whether such a law would be feasible or not. I do say that some sort of census ought to be taken in every such community giving a reasonably accurate idea as to the number of men who are shirking the responsibilities of this great war crisis. Then having ascertained the facts every moral influence should be brought to bear. If no legal steps could be taken to make them useful in the new emergency confronting us.

Moreover I have made it my aim to observe the employees in a large number of confectionary and soda stores and have found that hundreds of young and husky men are doing work that ought to be done at a time like this, by women. I have often wondered what was going on in these fellows' heads as they skipped around in white aprons making milk shakes and serving chocolate frappes.

What was going on in these fellows' heads is a realization of the fact that we are at war and that every man ought to be spending at least part of his time in the cause.

As I look at this problem of getting men where they can do the most service is partly a matter of local community patriotism. A great deal can be done to wake men up by the local press churches public gatherings and societies and by the creation of that subtle thing known as community spirit. The class of men I have been talking about ought to be ashamed into doing things more worth while. They ought to be dragged into the line of duty.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

THE YELLOW PERIL.

Once more we face the dandelions and forty-nine immemorial brays could not express the grief we're showing as we see the rank weeds growing. Once more with their waxes and shades and dingers we buckle down among the clippers, uprooting weeds that keep on thriving. It's simply will not quit surviving. Oh there are other deadly battles than those which wax where caption rattles and there are ones a lot more yellow than any. I blame the fellow through with my try months I have been yearning to see the good old spring return. I prayed for April with an ardor that made the March wind howl the harder. I filled the air with soulful wails—but I forgot the dandelions. Dings I've heard of the roses which charm our winter weary noses and of the buttercups and lilies which show away the damps and wiles. The dandelions I'd forgotten and now they're a nuisance. O' how I wish each day my frau gives me a wiggle because I hate the endless dings. Go do your bit, she says, and make the dandelions look neat and trimly. Our neighbors there the stately Evans have cleared their lawn of dandelions and so will I. I am wishing to start the war that knows no end.

LOAN

The Third Liberty Loan Campaign is now open. The allotment for Fayette County is approximately $3,700,000. On April 12th Lieutenant Perford of France will speak at the West End Theatre. He is loaned by the French Government to the Liberty Loan Committee. He has been decorated six times for bravery in action, and has been wounded four times. He has seen much active service. On the 18th there will be a public meeting likely on the Court House lawn. Sousa's wonderful band of New York will be in attendance. James Francis Burke of Pittsburgh will be among the speakers. Every man, woman and child in Fayette County should buy a Liberty Bond. We believe the Fayette County subscriptions will run over five million dollars. The Union Supply Company are offering during this entire week some very dainty styles in women's and misses' shirt waists and skirts. The variety is large, the styles are very unique and the prices reasonable. It is the second spring shipment and they are the choicest styles we will have during this season. PERRY VERY ACTIVE

Teachers and Pupils of School Doing Their Bit Toward War.

The report of the Perry township schools for the month of March shows the average attendance during the month to have been boys 89 per cent girls 87 per cent and the average attendance during the term boys 90 per cent girls 88 per cent.

Junior Red Cross auxiliaries have been organized at Perryopolis, Star Junction, Jackson, Virgin Run and Layton schools and a good start made in the work. Excellent programs were rendered at the community meetings held at Summit Hill, Virgin Run and Pleasant Grove during the week. The eighth grade pupils will meet at the high school building for their work on Thursday.

County Superintendent Carroll visited all the schools in the township recently except two and stated that he had never seen the schools in so good a condition before.

Community meetings were begun about two years ago for community development and the dissemination of progressive educational propaganda and 20 of these meetings had been held at different community centers over the township. In all these meetings the houses were packed and interest excellent. Since the first of the year the meetings have been continued under the auspices of the com-

War Savings stamps was placed in the schools the first of the year by Superintendent Principal W. H. Martin who is chairman of Four Minute Men and every teacher was supplied with the bulletin pertaining there and was appointed a Four Minute speaker.

The Iron Men St. History.

Cromwell was said to rule with an iron hand. His "roundheads" were no more heroes nor braver men than are our boys today fighting in France for country and freedom.
Men with dauntless spirits—men of red blood courage, energy, vim and vigor
are needed every day behind the lines as well as behind the guns. You need iron in the blood! Every healthy man or woman should have about as much iron in his or her body as there is in an ordinary "copper" nail. To gain this iron, the best way is to take an iron tonic called "Iron-tic," a combination of iron in its most soluble form, discovered by Dr. Pierce and experimented with by his physicians at the Surgical Institute in Buffalo.
"Iron-tic" is a form of iron readily taken up by the blood, the blood-cells get round, rich—red in color, the cheeks are pink, the appetite improves, and one feels full of "snap."
"pen"—"vigor"—instead of tired before the day is half done.
The eyes take on a luster and the body feels that tingle which one gets from a cold bath. If you want to try this new "Iron-tic" tablet send 10 cents to the Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y. and obtain a trial package. This 20th century Iron tonic is said to do you "good." Drug gists sell it for 10c, 25c, 50c, 75c, 1.00, 1.50, 2.00, 2.50, 3.00, 3.50, 4.00, 4.50, 5.00, 5.50, 6.00, 6.50, 7.00, 7.50, 8.00, 8.50, 9.00, 9.50, 10.00.

"HUNGRY EYES."—A five-part Bluebird attraction in which Monroe Sulzberg and Ruth Clifford are featured is being shown today. The story is one of intense interest and gives the stars a wonderful opportunity to display their dramatic abilities. A selected comedy is also being shown. Tomorrow Alice Brady will be featured in "The Spurs of Sybil," a World attraction. This is a modern, metropolitan tale telling of the adventures of a beautiful young society-butterfly, Sybil Drew, when she is told to go out into the world and earn her own living. She has been a "poor relation" dependent upon her wealthy aunt for support and this aunt decides that Sybil's uprightness and dependent condition. Therefore the aunt decides on drastic means of bringing happiness to Sybil. Miss Brady is supported by John Bowser and other World stars of prominence. Friday and Saturday, Normal Talma will be seen in "The Secret of the Storm Country," a picture of unusual interest. Viola Dana will appear soon in "Blue Jeans."

ARCADE THEATRE.

"THE HOTEL DE ROYAL."—Is the title of a farce comedy with music that will be presented today and tomorrow at the Arcade by the Submarine Girls. It is full of good clean comedy and is a laugh from start to finish. Harmony singing will also be a feature. The principal comedy role, that of an irrepressible bellhop, will be handled by Connelville's pet comedian, "Simmie" Myers, and the role fits him like the paper on the wall. Scott Moore will be the tough guy and Maudie Merseaux the tough girl, a part she can play admirably because of her dual voice. Larry Powers will be the sheriff and Wally Merseaux the landlord who is full of business. The Paramount Comedy Singing Four will be heard for the first time, and as this is the feature that has made the company noted, a treat is promised to the lovers of harmony singing. The Merseauxs will also be heard in duets and the Elliot Sisters will be seen in new dances. William Duncan will be on the screen in "Vengeance and the Woman."

THE SOISSON.

Another good sized audience witnessed the second day performance of Margaret Strayer Jones' delightful rural comedy, "The Minister's Wife," presented by the Chester Bishop Players at the Soisson theatre last evening. The last two performances of the comedy will be given today and starting Thursday night this splendid company will offer a new dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's great love story, "Dora Thorne," with Virginia Duncan as Dora and Chester Bishop as Lord Ronald Eadie. Saturday night the Chester Bishop Players will close their engagement at the Soisson.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"SIX SHOOTER ANDY."—The five reel William Fox western drama features Tom Mix in the leading role. "The Mutual Weekly" will also be shown. Tomorrow, "My Mother," the first of the Benjamin Chapin series, "The Son of Democracy," will be shown. Dainty Mary Miles Minter will also be shown in "Powers that Prey."

The Cost of Shells

When the battle is raging and everything depends on the ability of the artillery to stop the rush of the advancing enemy or to clear the way for our men, it does not matter to the gunner how much the shells cost. What matters to him is that he shall have as many shells as he needs—that means life or death, victory or defeat.

Modern warfare is very expensive and this war will be won by those who are able to provide the last few million dollars. That is why it is necessary for the United States Government to have great quantities of money so that there shall never be a shortage of shells or other necessities.

LIBERTY BONDS will provide this money. You are not asked to GIVE a penny, merely to LEND it at liberal interest to the richest government in the world.

Every LIBERTY BOND you buy stands between the American soldier and the enemy. It saves the lives of our men and provides them with the means of victory.

CHAPTER XIV.

That Sick Man From San Antonio.

It was part of the strategy practiced by the Cuban leaders to divide their forces into separate columns for the purpose of raiding the smaller Spanish garrisons and harassing the troops sent to their relief, reassembling these bands only when and where some telling blow was to be struck.

When O'Reilly and Branch enlisted in the Army of the Orient they were assigned to the command of Col. Miguel Lopez, and it was under his leadership that they made their first acquaintance with the peculiar methods of Cuban warfare.

There had been, at first, some doubt of Branch's fitness to take the field at all—he had suffered a severe hemorrhage shortly after his arrival at Cuba—and it was only after a hysterical demonstration on his part that he had been accepted as a soldier. He simply would not be left behind. At first the Cubans regarded him with mingled contempt and pity, for certainly no less promising volunteer had ever taken service with them. But upon the occasion of the very first fight all fitful disappeared as if by magic, for although Branch deliberately disobeyed orders, he nevertheless displayed such amazing audacity in the face of the enemy, such a theatrical contempt for bullets, as to stupify even the most over the head of his own men. He continued to be insanely "big, vary," tag his exploits to correspond with his moods, with the result that he attained a popularity which was unique, nay, sensational.

O'Reilly alone understood the reason for the fellow's morbid irritability, his suicidal recklessness; but when he privately remonstrated he was gruffly told to mind his own business. Branch flatly refused to modify his conduct; he seemed really bent upon cheating the disease that made his life a misery.

But, as usual, Branch was perverse; he refused to humor the sick man's hope. When, after blindly following death, Leslie had emerged from several engagements unscathed, his surprise—and perhaps a natural relief at finding himself whole—became tinged with a certain apprehension lest he survive those deliberately courted dangers only to succumb to the tils and privations of camp life. The fellow's tongue grew ever sharper; his society became intolerable, his gloom oppressive and irresistibly contagious. When, after several weeks of campaigning, the column went into camp for a short rest, O'Reilly decided that he would try to "throw off the burd" of Leslie's overwhelming dejection, and, if possible, shift a portion of it upon the shoulders of Captain Judson.

On the day after their arrival O'Reilly and the big artilleryman took advantage of a pleasant stream to bathe and wash their clothes; then, while they lay in their hammocks, enjoying the luxury of a tattered oil-cloth shelter and waiting for the sun to dry their garments, O'Reilly spoke what was in his mind.

"I'm getting about fed up on Leslie," he declared. "He's the world's champion crepe-hanger, and he's painted the whole world such a deep, despondent blue that I'm completely disintegrated. You've got to take him off my hands."

O'Reilly's youthful assistant, who at the moment was painstakingly manufacturing a huge, black cigar for himself out of some percolated tobacco, pricked up his ears at the mention of Branch's name and now edged closer, exclaiming:

"Curmudgeon! There's a hero for you. Mister Branch is the bravest man I ever seen. Our people call him 'El Demonio'!"

O'Reilly jerked his head toward the Cuban. "You see? He's made the hit of his life, and yet he resents it. My nerves are frayed out. I've argued myself hoarse, but he refuses to consider every thing I say. I wish you'd convince him that he has a chance to get well; it might alter his disposition. If something doesn't alter it I'll be court-martialed for shooting a man in his sleep, and I'll hit him right in the middle, no matter how slim he is." O'Reilly compressed his lips firmly.

The assistant, who had finished rolling his cigar, now lighted it and repeated: "Yes, sir, Mister Branch is the bravest man I ever seen. You remember that first battle, eh? Those Spaniards seen him couldn't throw down their guns and beat it. I laugh to think myself that day."

"Jacket" was at once the youngest and the most profane member of Colonel Lopez's entire command. The most shocking oaths fell from his beardless lips whenever he opened them to speak English, and O'Reilly's efforts to break the boy of the habit proved quite unavailing.

This Camaguey boy was a character. He was perhaps sixteen, and small for his age—a mere child, in fact. Nevertheless, he was a seasoned veteran, and his American camp-mates had grown exceedingly fond of him. He was a pretty, graceful youngster; his eyes were large and soft and dark; his face was as sensitive and mobile as that of a girl; and yet, despite his youth, he had won a reputation for daring and ferocity quite as notable in its way as was the renown of Leslie Branch.

In order to expand his knowledge of English—of which, by the way, he was inordinately proud—Jacket had volunteered to serve as O'Reilly's striker, and the result had been a fast friendship. It was O'Reilly who had given the boy his nickname—a name prompted by a marked eccentricity, for although Jacket possessed the two guarments which constituted the ordinary insurance uniform, he made a practice of wearing only one. On chilly nights, or on formal occasions, he wore both waistcoat and trousers, but at other times he dispensed entirely with the latter, and his legs went naked. They were naked now, as with the modesty of complete unconsciousness, he squatted in the shade, puffing thoughtfully at his giant cheroot.

Once Jacket's mind was fastened upon any subject, it remained there, and after a time he continued: "Did I tell you about that battle of Pino Bravo? Eh? He turned his big brown eyes upward to O'Reilly. 'Crucial! I still more'n a dozen men that day!'"

"It was a hot scrimmage," Judson attested. "Some of Lopez's niggers, those hell-lean, hungry fellows from Santiago, managed to back their way through a wire fence and get behind a detachment of the enemy who had made a stand under a hill. They charged, and for a wonder they got close enough to use their machetes. It was bloody work—the kind you read about—no quarter. Somehow Jacket managed to be right in the middle of the butchery. He's a brave kid, all right. May make it."

At that moment Branch approached, his long face set in lines of discontent, even fiercer than usual. He had been wondering about the camp in one of his restless fits, and now he began: "Say, what do you think I've been doing? I've been looking up some grub for Miss Evans, and I can't find any."

"Nothing fit for her to eat. You don't expect her to live on this infernal, eternal beef stew."

"Didn't Major Ramos bring anything along?" O'Reilly asked.

"He says there's a famine at Cuba."

"We'd better look into this," Judson exclaimed, and finding that his clothes were dry, he hurriedly began to dress himself.

Together, the three men made an investigation of the camp's resources, only to discover that Branch was right. There was, indeed, but little food of any kind, and that little was of the coarsest. Ordinarily, such a condition of affairs would have occasioned them no surprise, for the men were becoming accustomed to a more or less chronic scarcity of provisions; but the presence of Norine Evans put quite a different complexion upon the matter. They were still discussing the situation when Miss Evans, having finished her afternoon nap, threw open the flaps of her tent and stepped out.

When she had listened to the account apologetically submitted by her three friends, she drew her brows together, saying, plaintively: "Oh dear! We've been going short for a week, and Major Ramos told me we'd fare better when we got here. I had my mouth all set for a banquet. Couldn't you even find the poor dog a bone?"

"I'm afraid the cupboard is bare," O'Reilly acknowledged.

"Do you know what I want for dinner?" Norine inquired. "Lamb chops with green peas, some nice white bread, a salad, and coffee."

The three men looked at her anxiously. "That's what I want. I don't expect to get it."

With a sigh of relief the captain exclaimed, "I thought you were giving your order."

"Goodness, no!" With a laugh the girl seated herself upon her camp-chair, inviting her callers to dispose themselves on the round about her. "If you can stand the food, I dare say I can. Now then, tell me what you've been doing since you left Cuba. I've been frightened to death that some of you would be hurt. That's one reason why I've been working night and day helping to get the hospitals in shape. I can't bear to think of our boys being wounded. Everything is so different to what I thought it would be, and I'm so weak and ineffective. The medical supplies I brought are nearly all gone, and I've learned what hard work it is

"I imagined I was going to work wonders—I thought I was going to be a Florence Nightingale, and the men were going to idolize me."

"Don't they?" Judson demanded.

"No. That is—not in exactly the way I expected."

"Then you want to marry her?" O'Reilly explained.

"Insolent bunch!" growled the captain. Then he swallowed hard and said, "But for that matter, so do I."

"How silly you boys can be!" Norine laughed. "I dare say the others are joking too, but—"

"Joking?" O'Reilly grinned. "Not at all. I'm the only single man in camp who isn't in love with you. When you arrived this morning there was a general stampede for the river. I'll bet the fish in this stream will taste of soap for years to come."

As if to point O'Reilly's words at the moment, appeared Colonel Lopez, shaved head and clad in a recently laundered uniform which was still damp. The three Americans rose to salute him, but discipline was lax and he waved them back to their seats.

"We've been talking about food," Leslie Branch advised his commanding officer. "Miss Evans isn't a burning patriot like the rest of us, and so of course she can't share our ravenous appetite for beef cooked and eaten on the hoof."

"So?" Lopez's handsome face clouded. "You are hungry, then?"

Norine confessed that she was. "I'm starving!" said she. "I haven't had a decent meal for a week."

"God be praised! I know where there is a goat, not two leagues away!" said the colonel.

"But I don't want a goat," Norine complained. "I want—well, pickles, and jam, and sardines, and—candy, and—tooth-powder! Real boarding-house luxuries. I'd just like to rob a general store."

Lopez furrowed his brows and lost himself in thought. Later, while the others were talking, he drew Ramos aside and for a while they kept their heads together; then they invited Judson to join their council.

When O'Reilly joined Judson for supper the latter met him with a broad grin on his face. "Well," said he, "you can get ready to saddle up when the moon rises."

"What do you mean?"

"The colonel took Miss Evans at her word. We're going to raid San Antonio de los Baños—two hundred of us—to get her some pickles, and jam, and candy, and tooth-powder."

Certain histories of the Cuban War for Independence speak of "The Battle of San Antonio de los Baños." It is quite a stirring story to read and it has but one fault, a fault, by the way, not uncommon in histories—it is mainly untrue.

In the first place, the engagement was in no sense a battle, but merely a raid. The number of troops engaged was, perhaps, one-fifth of the generous total ascribed by the historians, and as a military maneuver it served no purpose whatsoever. Nevertheless, since the affair had a direct bearing upon the fortunes of several people connected with this story, it is, perhaps, worth relating.

Lopez and his troop approached the town in the early morning. As they deployed for the attack the colonel issued private instructions to certain members of his command.

"O'Reilly, you and Senior Branch will enter one grocery store after another. You will purchase that jam, those sardines, and whatever else you think Miss Evans would like. Captain Judson, you and Major Ramos will go to the apothecary shop—I understand there is a very good one—and look for tooth-powder and candy and the like. I shall see that the streets are cleared, then I shall endeavor to discover some pickles; but as God is my judge, I don't if there is such a thing this side of Habana."

Leslie Branch, whose temper had not improved with the long night ride, inquired, curiously: "Do you expect us to buy the groceries? Well, I'm broke, and so is O'Reilly. If you don't give us some change, colonel, we'll have to open a charge account in your name."

"Caramba!" muttered Lopez. "I intended to borrow from you gentlemen. Well, never mind—we'll commandeer what we wish in the name of the republic."

Lopez' attack proved a complete surprise, both to the citizens and to the garrison of the town. The rebel bugle gave the first warning of what was afoot and before the Castilian troops were loitering off duty could regain their quarters, before the citizens could take cover or the shopkeepers close and bar their heavy wooden shutters, two hundred ragged horsemen were pelting down the streets.

There followed a typical Cuban engagement—ten shots to one shot. There was a mad charge on the heels of the scurrying populace, a scattering pop-pop of rifles, cheers, cries, shrieks of defiance and far-flung insults directed at the fortillas.

O'Reilly, with Branch and Jacket close at his heels, whirled his horse into the first bodega he came to. The store was stocked with general merchandise, but its owner, evidently a Spaniard, did not hurry to set a price upon any of it. As the three horsemen came clattering in at the front he went flying out at the rear, and although O'Reilly called reassuringly after him, his only answer was the slamming of a back door, followed by swiftly diminishing cries of fright.

There was no time to waste. Johnnie dismounted and, walking to the shelves where some imported canned goods were displayed, he began to select those delicacies for which he had been sent. The devoted Jacket was at his side. The little Cuban exercised no restraint; he seized whatever was most handy, meanwhile cursing ferociously, as befitted a bloodthirsty bandit. Boys are natural robbers, and at this opportunity for loot Jacket's soul flamed savagely and he swept the shelves bare as he went.

"Hey, Leslie! Get something to carry this stuff in," O'Reilly directed over his shoulder.

Spurred by O'Reilly's tone and by a lively rattle of rifle-shots outside, Leslie disappeared into the living-quarters at the back of the store. A moment later he emerged with a huge armful of bedclothes, evidently snatched at random. Trailing behind him, like a bribe, was a mosquito-net, which in his haste he had torn from its fastenings.

"I guess this is near!" he exclaimed.

O'Reilly whirled his horse into the first bodega.

nothing follows! Mosquito-net! I'll sleep comfortably after this."

Dumping his burden of sheets, blankets and brilliantly colored cotton quilts upon the floor, Branch selected two of the stoutest and began to knot the corners together.

He had scarcely finished when Judson rained in at the door and called to O'Reilly: "We've cleaned out the drug store. Better get a move on you, for we may have to run any minute. I've just heard about some Cuban prisoners in the calaboose. Gimme a hand and we'll let 'em out."

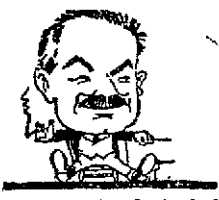

Shrilling in the general consternation at the attack, the jail guards had disappeared, leaving Lopez' men free to break into the prison. When O'Reilly joined them the work was well under way. Seizing whatever implements they could find, Judson and O'Reilly went from cell to cell, battering, prying, smashing, leaving their comrades to rescue the inmates. While the Americans smashed lock after lock, their comrades dragged the astonished inmates from their kennels, hauled them into the street, and took them up behind their ankles.

The raid was over. "Retreat" was sounding, when Judson and O'Reilly ran out of the prison, mounted, and joined their comrades, who were streaming back toward the plaza.

Colonel Lopez galloped up to inquire, anxiously, "Did you find those Catholics, eh?"

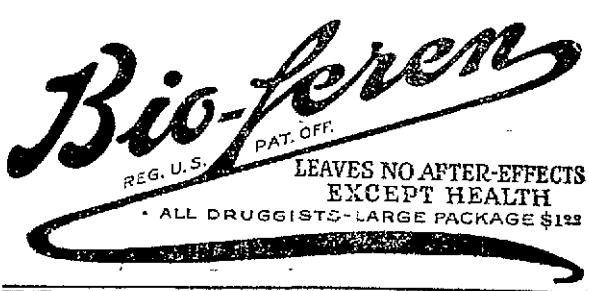

"Yes, sir, and a lot more."
